

Outstanding Project Delivery

Projects are everywhere and accomplishing them appears simple at first, but in practice can be very difficult. Knowledge of how to do it isn't enough.

When working to deliver change through projects, we know that the best people work very differently to the rest.

- They know the rules well, but somehow bring very much more into play.
- They build rapport, give ideas and innovation their chance, and yet promote order.
- They find ways to accommodate the needs of stakeholders and win the commitment of other project players.
- They engage others without compromising the pace of delivery of the project's promises.
- They combine the rigour of project management processes, tools and techniques with the richness of the behaviours required for close engagement, a combination that we describe as 'complete project management'.

How are such people developed?

In this all-participation event, you will observe, experience and be challenged to express the essential behaviours that enable close engagement; and enable the breakthrough from good to outstanding project delivery.

WARNING: this event has no PowerPoint™ slides!

Outcomes for the individual

Participants will leave the event with:

- A new and powerful perspective revealing how to get close engagement with a team working together to accomplish delivery of a difficult project.
- An understanding of how 'complete project management' makes a tangible difference to project success.
- A framework to guide application of your skills with the wider organisation in your workplace.
- A vivid memory with useful and relevant supporting materials.
- The skill and energy to put what you've learned into practice.
- A valuable addition to your CV to supplement knowledge-based qualifications.

Participant requirements

- This event is not for you if you don't want to experience outstanding project delivery in action. It will be challenging, but also great fun.
- The event design assumes that you have experience of working in projects and have at least a basic knowledge of the principles and language of project management, for example as promoted by the Association for Project Management (APM) or Project Management Institute (PMI®), or Office for Government Commerce (PRINCE2®). If you're not sure about this, we can provide our book 'Starting Out in Project Management' as a reminder of some of the language of

Outcomes for the sponsoring organisation

Organisations should expect people returning from this event to have:

- A good understanding of what 'complete project management' looks and feels like.
- Many ideas that can be used to augment existing process and practice to make project delivery outstanding.
- A personal action plan of what they commit to changing in themselves.
- The skill and energy to put what they've learned into practice.

This experiential event takes place over two days, commencing at 9.00am on Day 1 and our charges are for a residential event with one night's accommodation on the middle night. There is no prescribed work after 7pm on Day 1, but the event is residential to create a relaxed and sociable atmosphere and to allow a prompt start at 8.30am on Day 2. You will be on your way home by 5.00pm on Day 2.

If you wish to sleep in a different location that's fine by us but the event relies on having participants present throughout. We cannot give any discount if you chose not to stay in the accommodation we provide.

Dates are advertised on our websites. www.engagementworks.com and www.lucidusconsulting.com

The all-inclusive charge for the event with more than 15 hours of high-quality facilitated learning is £995 plus VAT and this includes a visual record of what happened on the event to create a lasting reminder of your learning.
